President's Message

Greetings,

Another convention is in the books. Fargo-Moorhead Camera Club put together a nice mixture of speakers and field trips. The speakers did a great job of including information for the beginner up to the advanced photographer on their subjects. Field trips were available for a variety of interests, as well. From night photography, to nature, to the Wild West; they had it covered. The only hard part was choosing what to attend. I'm pretty sure I had a fun time, because it took me three nights to catch up on my sleep.

Tamron had a number of lenses that those going on field trips could borrow and test out. Gary Farber of Hunt's just happened to have many of those same lenses for sale. A lot of us; myself included, left with emptier pockets. Gary and Tamron also sponsored many of our wonderful speakers, as well as providing impressive door prizes--so a special thank you to them. Those of us who went on the Bluestem Prairie field trip got the opportunity to enter an image taken on that shoot in the Scott Kelby World Wide Photo Walk. Good luck, everyone!

On a more somber note, FMCC along with Iowa City Camera Club put together a touching tribute to recently deceased past president, Jo Eland. There were quite a few moist eyes, when Jo's images won some awards. I managed to stumble through a presentation of a plaque Jo had made to honor the only surviving founders (Francis and Vernice Kingsbury) on this the 60th annual convention of N4C. Be sure to thank them for founding such a wonderful organization. This year saw a large increase in first-timers, once again showing how N4C is the place where names become faces, and faces become friends. I look forward to seeing you all next year in Rapid City.

Linda Rutherford

Jo Eland, 68

Dr. Jo Eland

At the end of the nurses' shift on Sunday, September 25, 2016, Jo left this world on her own terms.

A Service of Remembrance and Celebration will be held at 11 AM, Friday, September 30th at Lensing Funeral & Cremation Service, Iowa City. The family will greet friends after 10 AM. A reception will follow at The Kirkwood Room. Casual attire requested. In lieu of flowers memorials may be directed to the University of Iowa Foundation for The College of Nursing, PO Box 167, Iowa City, IA 52244.

Jo was born April 6, 1945 in Mediapolis. She received her bachelor's and master degree and her PhD from the University of Iowa.

Jo was a professor in the College of Nursing at the University of Iowa for 41 years. Her colleagues, friends, and family describe Jo as a mentor, teacher, advocate, philanthropist, photographer and even a second mom. As a mentor, Jo mentored humility, empathy and ceaseless compassion. As a philanthropist, everybody knows of her unlimited and unwavering generosity. As a teacher, Jo embodied and inspired student nurses to be their very best. Her knowledge and passion for children's pain management was legendary and reached globally - including extensive work taking students to India, to collaborating with international colleagues in Italy.

Jo was a fierce advocate for pain management at the international level, national level, and the personal level involving the pain management of patients who were family or friends. She worked tirelessly with international colleagues on collaborative presentations and publications. Her advocacy at the national level included testifying before Congress about pain management. On a more personal level, she would advocate for family members, friends, and family members of friends going through issues of pain management.

Jo never missed a chance to share her heart and spread her love onto those in her life. Her strength, humor and zest for life were always infectious - and her family and friends will carry her spirit forward.

Jo is survived by her sister Inez (Gil) Dawes of Indianola; nieces, Juli Agan of West Des Moines and Jessica Ireland of Des Moines ; her nephew, Jeff Ireland of Charlotte, N.C.; great nieces, Christine Hagerty, Maddie Hagerty, Kaleigh Ireland and great nephew, Kaelan Ireland.

Preceded in death by her parents, Tom and Mildred (Walker) Eland.

Club Outings....

Outings together are some of the favorite highlights from N4C convention attendees. One of my personal favorites was shooting night photos when the convention was held in St. Paul a few years ago.

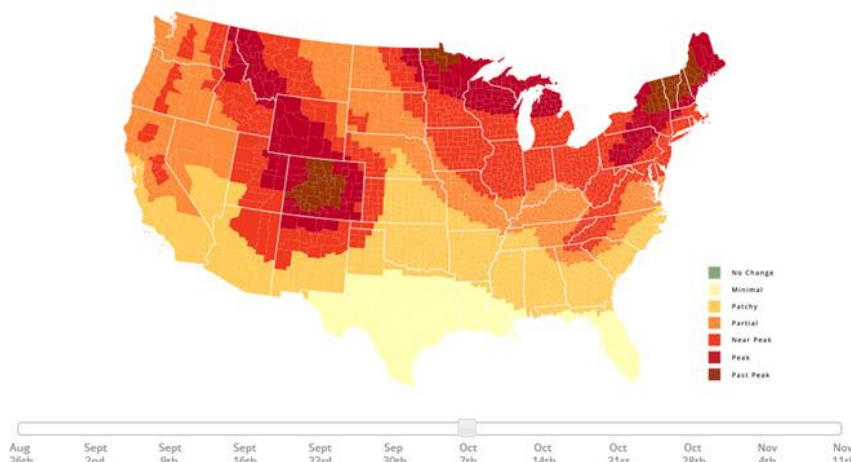

Eight members of the Black Hills Photography Club went camping this summer, as they have for the past four years, in their annual Slim Buttes camping and photography trip.

What are some of your favorite excursions or ideas for trips with your own clubs? I'm also always looking for bulletin content if you have any other ideas you'd like to share. Please drop me a line at edit@n4c.us! Preferred format for any articles or content you'd like included is MSword or plain text files. Jpg photos are welcome, please include photo credit and know they will need to be re-sized for publication.

Technical Information

Just for Beginners

Your Own Photographic Style

“I like to take photos of everything!” exclaims the beginning photographer! Now what? Do you keep taking photos just because you enjoy it, or do you want to pinpoint what you are trying to express? Then you could improve and reach your goals more successfully. Here are some techniques for finding and developing your own photographic style.

What do you like the best? Choose five favorite images by other people and ten of your own. If you find similarities in their looks, then you have already started to find your own style, consciously or unconsciously. Repeat every year!

If the images do not appear to be similar, analyze more deeply. Consider the kind of subject matter, the look (real, abstract), the difficulty of finding that subject and photographing it, the camera techniques used to capture it, the visual mood it evokes (mysterious, foggy, crisp, cold), how it makes you feel (happy, sad, intrigued, amazed), the overall look such as busy or plain, and the editing techniques used (creative, HDR, dramatic, contrasty, or real life).

You could have a different photographic style for different subject matter. For example, for landscapes you may prefer wide angle shots rather than zooming into a detail from afar. For portraits you might desire an extremely long telephoto rather than a wide angle up close.

It is helpful to identify the various categories of photography and to try your hand at them: landscape scenic, close-up, portrait, sports, travel, architecture, photo-journalism, candid, groups, clouds, still life, low key, high key, food, soft focus, street photography, night, fireworks, fashion, model, and whatever else appeals to you. Each one will contribute to your developing photographic style as you use different cameras, lenses, camera settings, angles, editing processes, and choices for time of day, season, weather, etc.

Images can look real or abstract. A reflection distorts reality. A super close-up can be unrecognizable for its reality but a beautiful vision. What do you want to convey?

Beginning photographers often shoot everything. They learn the visual difference between a wide angle and long telephoto shot. They see what can be captured using a fast or slow shutter speed. They discover depth of field in a way that cannot be seen with the naked eye. That moment in time can look real or surreal. Then they realize that they can control the look of the image with their camera. And that is when the process of developing a photographic style becomes a conscious effort and a real joy.
